Picketer sees a lot at Planned Parenthood

From Les Feldman
Rickardsville, Iowa

As one of the picketers at Planned Parenthood, I have a feeling the employees do not appreciate us being there as I am greeted with clenched teeth when I wish them the time of day.

Some of the things I see are young people going in with rings in their nose and eyebrows and pants hanging off their hips, getting supplies.

I see a mother taking her young daughter in, spending up to 45 minutes in the building. I hope these mothers are not taking their daughters in for further arrangements. This is why the Dubuque business is a pipeline for abortions. Can you imagine what the future holds for these families? They will carry this decision to their grave.

I have never seen a father go into the Planned Parenthood business. As we picket this business, we receive a lot of smiling approvals along with the occasional third-finger salute. Just know we are praying for a change of heart.

One of the most revolting things I see is when I see a sister from one of the convents shake her head in disapproval of our prayerful watch.

Do not be confused by big ads for Planned Parenthood – e.g. the Telegraph Herald June 28 edition, page 10A.

As we perform our picketing duties, we are monitored by two cameras. I hope that these people who visit this business anonymously realize that they are being monitored, and God's monitoring is always in focus.
