

Telegraph Herald
Letters to the Editor
Sunday, August 16, 2009

Don't let Planned Parenthood in schools

From Cindy Kisting
La Motte

Here we go! Planned Parenthood has been in town for almost one year now, and its supporters are starting to push for it to be involved in our schools.

Last August, Connie Hardie in her "my view," laid out Planned Parenthood's business plan, and its first step in sex education. Planned Parenthood's version of sex education will be to encourage our youth to become sexually active, resulting in a "need" for contraception, which it will gladly supply. It is well aware that contraceptives fail, which results in a "need" for abortion, its big money maker.

Contact your school board representatives and tell them we know what Planned Parenthood is up to, and tell them that it is not welcome in our schools.